TUESDAY, MARCH 8. 1737.

having received the following Copy of an Address from the City of Edinburgh, to her late Majesty Queen Anne, at a very critical Conjuncture, viz. on the 7th Day of July 1714, it may not be improper to communicate it to the Publick.

To the Queen's most Excellent Majesty.

The Humble Address of the Lord Provost, Magistrates, Town Council and Community of the City of Edinburgh.

May it please your Majesty,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, do humbly beg Leave to express our deep Sense of your Majesty's great Concern for the Religion and the Liberties of your People, in issuing your Royal Proclamation for the apprehending of the Pretender to your Crown.

The many Blessings we receive under your Ma-'s Reign, do necessarily unite our Duty, our In-t, and our ardent Desires to support that Title reby we enjoy them, and to encrease our Aversion the Pretensions of a Person attainted by your s, an Usurper of your Titles, and Invader of Dominions.

We are very sensible how little we offer, when declare ourselves firmly determined to sacrifice our es and Fortunes for the Defence of your Majesty the Protestant Succession in the illustrious House Hanover; since by that Defence only, we can call n our own.

ecured by the Declaration of your Majesty, and frequent and solemn Promises from the Throne, hall quiet our Minds, we shall abate our Fears, be the less apprehensive of Danger, when we see Great Queen is graciously pleased herself to en-e her Subjects Diligence and Zeal for her Right he Crown, our Religion and Liberties, and the ce of her Kingdoms.

We cannot wonder that the restless and traiterous ices of the Papists, and the Faction disaffected to Majesty and the Protestant Succession, should at have appeared incredible, especially when ed with specious Pretences of Loyalty and Re-n; and even manifest and notorious as they now we can hardly otherways account for their un-g, precarious Submission to your Majesty, as Queen; but from their own Consciousness of not deserving to be so happy as your Subjects.

heir Designs are indeed now unhappily plain, would have been fatally so, if your Majesty had ith a provident Care of your self and your Sub-given a Check to their Pride, and stopt the ent of the eager and wicked Expectations of those favoured the Interest of the Pretender to your doms.

y your Majesty long continue your Health, racious Affection for your People; may all your cts, who have any Regard for their Religion, ir Civil Rights, now at last unite in defeating ttempts against the Constitution, as establish'd by ; and may your two Churches, however divided clesiastical Matters, contend now only in their for your Majesty and the Protestant Succession, ured to Futurity in the illustrious House of er.

May it please your Majesty, &c.

Signed,

Yesterday arrived a Mail from Holland.

THEY write from Vienna, that the Grand Vizier has presented the Imperial Ambassador an, with a very fine Horse richly caparison'd, is valued at above 2000 Florins; and that on, it has been resolved at the Imperial Court, the Grand Vizier a magnificent Present in . They add, that the Emperor will nominate nt de Kufstein, who is a Privy Counsellor ice Chancellor of the Empire, to be his first Plenipotentiary Ambassador; and the Count d'Ostein, his Imperial Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary at the Court of Russia, to be his second Ambassador Plenipotentiary, to act in concert with the Baron de Dahlman, who is to be his third Plenipotentiary at the Congress which is to be held in Moldavia, for reconciling the Differences between the Czarina and the Grand Signior.

Letters from Mittau say, that the Duke of Courland, who is 83 Years of Age, is so dangerously ill that he has made his Will, and thereby recommended to the Nobility for his Successor, a Nobleman who will be agreeable to Russia, and one whom the King of Poland will not refuse to acknowledge. Some Advices explain this Personage to be the Prince of Hesse Hombourg, who is General in Chief of the Russian Forces in the Ukraine.

The Advices from Italy, mention the Death of the Prince de Cellamare, and the Indisposition of the King of Sardinia.

Those from Rome say, that by Virtue of the Accommodation of the Differences betwixt that Court and Spain, the Nunciatures of Naples and Madrid, are again set open, as is also the Datary at Rome, which is frequented by the Spaniards as heretofore, for the procuring of Dispensations for Marriages and Parish Bulls; and 'tis said, that after the Nuncioes of Naples and Spain are arrived at their Posts, the Pope will own Don Carlos in quality of King of the Two Sicilies, and grant him the Investiture of both those Kingdoms.

These Letters add, that Count Trivelli, a Neapolitan, and one John Baptist Jacoboni, a Priest, having been tried and convicted, the former for having composed, and the latter, for having copied and published certain impious and scandalous satyrical Poems against the Priesthood, the Government, the Corsini Family, and even the Pope himself, and tending to disturb the publick Tranquility, they were both sentenced to be beheaded; but the Pope, at the pressing Instances of his Nephew, the Cardinal Vicar Guadagni, was pleased to commute the Sentence of the Priest into Imprisonment for Life, so that only the Count was beheaded.

They write from Paris, that since the Disgrace of M. Chauvelin, the Duke of Orleans, and the Count de Tholouse, give assiduous Attendance at Court, and that the King thinks the Opinion of those two Personages, in concert with Cardinal Fleury, sufficient for regulating the Affairs of State.

They add, that his Majesty having declared upon Shrove Monday, that he had an Inclination to go to Paris to see the Diversions of the Carnaval, he went thither accordingly incog. at 11 o'Clock at Night, accompanied only by the Prince of Conti, the Prince de Soubise, and the Duke d'Ayen, and alighting at the House of the Marquis de Beringhem, the chief Equerry, he mask'd himself and put on a purple Domino, and the Lords having also put on theirs, tho' of different Colours, he left his Equipage and Guards behind, and with the said three Lords, went to the Palace in a hired Coach, without any Page or other Servant, and as he entered the Opera House, paid a Crown at the Door, as well as each of his Companions. He stay'd at the Ball, and was very merry at it, till 4 o'Clock next Morning, and might have then retired altogether unknown, had he not gone into the Box where Madamoiselle de Charolois sate, who, tho' he endeavoured to alter his Voice, knew him, and actually told him, that his Tongue betrayed him; upon this, the King unmask'd, and walking on Foot to the Stables, without any other Light than that which was given by the Savoyards who attend the Opera upon the Ball Days, he took Coach for Versailles, heard Mass, as soon as he returned, and then went to Bed.
